An Ancient Theory of Religion

Euhemerism from Antiquity to the Present

Nickolas Roubekas

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This book examines Euhemerism – a theory of religion developed by Euhemerus of Messene in the late 4th through early 3rd centuries BCE – tracing the history and reception of the theory in antiquity and in early Christianity, where it was adopted and reshaped for particular religious and ideological reasons. It shows how and why Euhemerism arose, how it was used, and how it significantly influenced theoretical discussions of religion from antiquity onward.

Baal and the Politics of Poetry

Aaron Tugendhaft

Series: The Ancient World

Baal and the Politics of Poetry provides a thoroughly new interpretation of the Ugaritic Baal Cycle that simultaneously inaugurates an innovative approach to studying ancient Near Eastern literature within the political context of its production. The book argues that the poem, written in the last decades of the Bronze Age, takes aim at the reigning political-theological norms of its day and uses the depiction of a divine world to educate its audience about the nature of human politics. By attuning ourselves to the specific historical context of this one poem, we can develop more nuanced appreciation of how poetry, politics, and religion have interacted—in antiquity, and beyond.

Ancient Fairy and Folk Tales

An Anthology

Graham Anderson

This anthology explores the multitude of evidence for recognisable fairy tales drawn from sources in the much older cultures of the ancient world, appearing much earlier than the 17th century where awareness of most fairy tales tends to begin.

This volume breaks down the traditional barriers between Classical Mythology and the fairy tale, and will be an invaluable resource for anyone working on the history of fairy tales and folklore.

Bride of Hades to Bride of Christ

The Virgin and the Otherworldly Bridegroom in Ancient Greece and Early Christian Rome

Abbe Lind Walker, Connecticut College, USA

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume argues that ancient Greek girls and early Christian virgins and their families made use of rhetorically similar traditions of marriage to an otherworldly bridegroom in order to handle the problem of a girl's denied or disrupted transition into adulthood.

Brides of Hades to Brides of Christ offers a fascinating comparative study that will be of interest to anyone working on virginity and womanhood in the ancient world.

Animals in Ancient Greek Religion

Edited by Julia Kindt

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This book explores the role of animals in different areas of the ancient Greek religious experience, including in myth and ritual, the literary and the material evidence, the real and the imaginary.

Taken together, the individual contributions to this book illustrate that ancient Greek religion constituted a triangular symbolic system encompassing not just gods and humans, but also animals as a third player and point of reference.

Of interest to students and scholars of Greek religion, Greek myth, and ancient religion more broadly, as well as for anyone interested in human/animal relations in the ancient world.

Dionysus and Politics

Constructing Authority in the Graeco-Roman World

Edited by Filip Doroszewski and Dariusz Karłowicz
Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume provides the reader with the substantial evidence, presented here for the first time in a chronological manner, of the essential place that Dionysus occupied in Greek and Roman political thought. Dionysus and Politics provides an excellent introduction to a fundamental feature of ancient political thought which until now has been largely neglected by mainstream academia. The book will be an invaluable resource to students and scholars interested in ancient politics and religion.

Divine Mania

Alteration of Consciousness in Ancient Greece

Yulia Ustinova

Divine mania comprises a fascinating array of experiences, which could be voluntary or involuntary, intense or mild, and were interpreted as an invasive divine power within one's mind, or illumination granted by a superhuman being. Greece was unique in its attitude to alteration of consciousness and the prominent position of the divine mania in Greek society reflects its acceptance of the inborn human proclivity to experience alteration of consciousness, interpreted in positive terms as god-sent. These mental states were treated with cautious respect and in contrast to the majority of complex societies, ancient and modern, were never suppressed or pushed to the cultural and

Ea's Duplicity in the Gilgamesh Flood Story

Martin Worthington

This volume opens up new perspectives on Babylonian and Assyrian literature, through the lens of a pivotal passage in the Gilgamesh Flood story. It shows how, using a nine-line message where not all was as it seemed, the god Ea inveigled humans into building the Ark. Ea's Duplicity in the Gilgamesh Flood Story will interest Assyriologists, Hebrew Bible scholars and Classicists, but also students and researchers in all areas concerned with Gilgamesh, word play, oracles, and traditions about the Flood.

Divination and Theurgy in Neoplatonism

Oracles of the Gods

Crystal Addey

Series: Studies in Philosophy and Theology in Late Antiquity

Why did ancient philosophers consult oracles, write about them, and consider them to be an important part of philosophical thought and practice? This book explores the extensive links between oracles and philosophy in Late Antiquity, particularly focusing on the roles of oracles and other forms of divination in third and fourth century CE Neoplatonism. Examining some of the most significant debates between pagan philosophers and Christian intellectuals on the nature of oracles as a central yet contested element of religious tradition, Addey focuses particularly on Porphyry's Philosophy from Oracles and Iamblichus' De Mysteriis - two works which deal extensively with oracles and other forms of

Excavating Pilgrimage

Archaeological Approaches to Sacred Travel and Movement in the Ancient World

Edited by Troels Myrup Kristensen, Aarhus University, Denmark and Wiebke Friese

This volume sheds new light on the significance and meaning of material culture for the study of pilgrimage in the ancient world, focusing in particular on Classical and Hellenistic Greece, the Roman Empire, and Late Antiquity. It thus discusses how archaeological evidence can be used to advance our understanding of ancient pilgrimage and ritual experience? The volume brings together a group of scholars that explore some of the rich archaeological evidence for sacred travel and movement, such as the material footprint of different activities undertaken by pilgrims, the spatial organization of sanctuaries, and wider catchment of pilgrimage sites.

Greek Myth and the Bible

Bruce Louden

Greek Myth and the Bible argues that classical mythological literature and the biblical texts were composed in a dialogic relationship. Louden examines a variety of Greek myths from a range of sources, analyzing parallels between biblical episodes and Hesiod, Euripides, Argonautic myth, selections from Ovid's Metamorphoses, and Homeric epic. This fascinating volume offers a starting point for debate and discussion of these cultural and literary exchanges and adaptations in the wider Mediterranean world, and will be an invaluable resource to students of the Hebrew Bible and the influence of Greek myth.

Gilgamesh

Louise M. Pryke

Gilgamesh focuses on the eponymous hero of the world's oldest epic and his legendary adventures. However, it also goes further and examines the significance of the story's Ancient Near Eastern context, and what it tells us about notions of kingship, animality, and the natures of mortality and immortality. Gilgamesh is an invaluable tool for anyone seeking to understand this fascinating figure, and more broadly, the relevance of Near Eastern myth in the classical world and beyond.

Omens and Oracles

Divination in Ancient Greece

Matthew Dillon

Ancient Greek divination took many forms: observing the flights of birds, inspecting the entrails of sacrificed animals, analysing dreams, and interpreting omens. Professional diviners assisted the concerned with their worries, but individuals also interpreted anything considered ominous, or even oracles. While states and wealthy individuals made their way to oracular centres, others had recourse to interpreting what they encountered in their everyday lives, or what they dreamed of. Literature, inscriptions, papyri and material evidence all indicate that divination was practised by all and formed a crucial part of the lives of both the state and the individual.

Ishtar

Louise M. Pryke, The University of Sydney, Australia

Series: Gods and Heroes of the Ancient World

Ishtar is the first book dedicated to providing an accessible analysis of the mythology and image of this complex goddess. The polarity of her nature is reflected in her role as goddess of sexual love and war, and has made her difficult to characterise in modern scholarship. By exploring this complexity, Ishtar offers insight into Mesopotamian culture and thought, and elucidates a goddess who transcended the limits of gender, divinity and nature. It gives an accessible introduction to the Near Eastern pantheon, while also opening up a pathway for comparison with the later Near Eastern and Mediterranean deities who followed her.

Proclus and the Chaldean Oracles

A Study on Proclean Exegesis, with a Translation and Commentary of Proclus' Treatise On Chaldean Philosophy

Nicola Spanu

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume examines the discussion of the Chaldean Oracles in the work of Proclus, as well as offering a translation and Commentary of Proclus' Treatise On Chaldean Philosophy. Spanu assesses whether Proclus' exegesis of the Chaldean Oracles can be used by modern research to better clarify the content of Chaldean doctrine or must instead be abandoned because it represents a substantial misinterpretation of originary Chaldean teachings. The volume is augmented by Proclus' Greek text, with English translation and commentary. Proclus and the Chaldean Oracles will be of interest to researchers working on Neoplatonism, Proclus, and theurgy in the ancient world.

Monsters in Greek Literature

Aberrant Bodies in Ancient Greek Cosmogony, Ethnography, and Biology

Fiona Mitchell, University of Birmingham, UK

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

Monsters in Greek literature are often thought of as creatures which exist in epic narratives, however, as this book shows, they appear in a much broader range of ancient sources and are used in creation narratives, ethnographic texts, and biology to explore the limits of the human body and of the human world. This book is aimed primarily at scholars and students undertaking research, not only with an interest in monstrosity, but also cultural representations of time, ancient geography and ethnography, ancient philosophy and science.

The Bible, Homer, and the Search for Meaning in Ancient Myths

Why We Would Be Better Off With Homer's Gods

John Heath

The Bible, Homer, and the Search for Meaning in Ancient Myths explores and compares the most influential sets of divine myths in Western Culture: the Homeric pantheon and Yahweh, the God of the Old Testament. Heath argues that not only does the God of the Old Testament bear a striking resemblance to the Olympians, but also that the Homeric system rejected by the Judeo-Christian tradition offers a better model for the human condition.

Underworld Gods in Ancient Greek Religion

Death and Reciprocity

Ellie Mackin Roberts

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume presents a case for how and why people in archaic and classical Greece worshipped Underworld gods.

These gods are often portrayed as malevolent and transgressive, giving an impression that ancient worshippers derived little or no benefits from developing ongoing relationships with them. In this book, the first book-length study that focuses on Underworld gods as an integral part of the religious landscape of the period, Mackin Roberts challenges this view and shows that Underworld gods are, in many cases, approached and 'befriended' in the same way as any other kind of god.

This volume will be of interest to anyone working on ancient Greek religion and cult.

Women's Ritual Competence in the Greco-Roman Mediterranean

Edited by Matthew Dillon, Esther Eidinow and Lisa Maurizio

Contributions in this volume demonstrate how, across the ancient Mediterranean and over hundreds of years, women's rituals intersected with the political, economic, cultural or religious spheres of their communities in a way that has only recently started to gain sustained academic attention. The volume aims to tease out a number of different approaches and contexts, and to expand existing studies of women in the ancient world, as well as scholarship on religious and social history.

Pyrrhonian Buddhism

A Philosophical Reconstruction

Adrian Kuzminski

Pyrrhonian Buddhism reconstructs the path to enlightenment shared both by early Buddhists and the ancient Greek sceptics inspired by Pyrrho of Elis, who may have had extended contacts with Buddhists when he accompanied Alexander the Great to India in the third century BCE. This book is intended for the general reader, as well as historians, classicists, Buddhist scholars, philosophers, and practitioners of spiritual techniques.

A Commentary on Numbers

Narrative, Ritual, and Colonialism

Pekka Pitkänen

Series: Routledge Studies in the Biblical World

This book provides a new reading of the biblical book of Numbers in a commentary form. Mainstream readings have tended to see the book as a haphazard junkyard of material that connects Genesis-Leviticus with Deuteronomy, composed at a late stage in the history of ancient Israel. In contrast, this book reads Numbers as part of a wider work of Genesis-Joshua, a carefully crafted programmatic settler colonial document for a new society in the Canaanite highlands in the late 2nd millennium BCE that seeks to replace pre-existing indigenous societies. It is a valuable resource for students of the Hebrew Bible, and also anyone working on the history of ancient Israel, and the ANE more broadly.

A New Perspective on the Use of Paul in the Gospel of Mark

Cameron Evan Ferguson, University of Chicago, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the Early Christian World

This volume presents a detailed case for the plausible literary dependence of the Gospel of Mark on select letters of the apostle Paul. Focussing in particular on the various (re)presentations of Christ's death, it contends that Mark self-consciously sought to anticipate the person, teachings, and mission of Paul by constructing narrative precursors concordant with the eventual teachings of the itinerant apostle—a process Ferguson labels Mark's 'etiologal hermeneutic.' The book makes a substantial contribution to the ongoing debate about the dependence of Mark on Paul.

A Philosophical Theology of the Old Testament

A historical, experimental, comparative and analytic perspective

Jaco Gericke

This book sets out an approach to something that has been generally considered impossible: a philosophical theology of the Old Testament. Focusing on the nature of Yahweh in the Old Testament, it argues that there is an implicit underlying philosophical framework to belief in God in the Hebrew Bible which is amenable to analytic treatment. This new vision of Biblical and philosophical theology brings them closer together in order that we might understand both more broadly and deeply. As such, it will be vital reading for scholars of Theology, Biblical Studies and Philosophy.

Beyond Orality

Biblical Poetry on its Own Terms

Jacqueline Vayntrub

Beyond Orality: Biblical Poetry on its Own Terms changes the debate by showing how biblical poetry has worked as a mirror, reflecting each era's own self-image of verbal art. Yet Vayntrub also shows that this problem is rooted in a crucial pattern within the Bible itself: the texts we recognize as "poetry" are framed as powerful and ancient verbal performances, dramatic speeches from the past. The Bible's creators presented what we call poetry in terms of their own image of the ancient and the oral, and understanding their native theories of Hebrew verbal art gives us a new basis to rethink our own.

Discovering Babylon

Rannfrid Thelle

Series: Studies in the History of the Ancient Near East

This volume presents Babylon as it has been passed down through Western culture: through the Bible, classical texts, in Medieval travel accounts, and through depictions of the Tower motif in art. It then details the discovery of the material culture remains of Babylon from the middle of the 19th century and through the great excavation of 1899-1917, and focuses on the encounter between the Babylon of tradition and the Babylon unearthed by the archaeologists. This book is unique in its multi-disciplinary approach, combining expertise in biblical studies and Assyriology with perspectives on history, art history, intellectual history, reception studies and contemporary issues.

Greek Myth and the Bible

Bruce Louden

Greek Myth and the Bible argues that classical mythological literature and the biblical texts were composed in a dialogic relationship. Louden examines a variety of Greek myths from a range of sources, analyzing parallels between biblical episodes and Hesiod, Euripides, Argonautic myth, selections from Ovid's Metamorphoses, and Homeric epic. This fascinating volume offers a starting point for debate and discussion of these cultural and literary exchanges and adaptations in the wider Mediterranean world, and will be an invaluable resource to students of the Hebrew Bible and the influence of Greek myth.

Job's Body and the Dramatised Comedy of Moralising

Katherine E. Southwood, University of Oxford, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Biblical World

This book focuses on the expressions used to describe Job's body in pain and on the reactions of his friends to explore the moral and social world reflected in the language and the values that their speeches betray. It highlights how the perspective of illness as retribution is powerfully refuted in Job's speeches and, in particular, to show how this is achieved through comedy.

Comedy in Job is a powerful weapon used to expose and ridicule the idea of retribution.

Of interest to anyone working on the Book of Job, as well as those with an interest in suffering and pain in the Hebrew Bible

more broadly.

John the Baptist as a Rewritten Figure in Luke-Acts

Christina Michelsen Chauchot

Series: Copenhagen International Seminar

Compares the Gospel of Luke's account of John's ministry with those of Matthew, Mark and John. Part I situates the Gospel of Luke within the broader context of biblical rewritings and makes a general case that a rewriting strategy can be detected in Luke. Parts II and III offer a more detailed argument, using a literary-critical perspective and comparative 'test cases' to argue that the Gospel of Luke makes thematic changes upon John the Baptist and is best characterized as a highly creative reshaping of Matthew and Mark. The book contributes to research in the area of New Testament exegesis and is useful reading for researchers in the field.

Masculinities in the Court Tales of Daniel

Advancing Gender Studies in the Hebrew Bible

Brian Charles DiPalma

In this volume, Brian Charles DiPalma examines masculinities in the court tales of Daniel as a test case for issues facing the burgeoning area of gender studies in the Hebrew Bible. In doing so, it both analyses how the court tales of Daniel portray the characters in terms of configurations of masculinity in their socio-historical context, and also seeks to advance gender studies in the Hebrew Bible on theoretical, methodological, and political grounds.

Plato and the Creation of the Hebrew Bible

Russell E. Gmirkin

Series: Copenhagen International Seminar

Plato and the Creation of the Hebrew Bible compares the ancient law collections of the Ancient Near East, the Greeks and the Pentateuch to determine the legal antecedents for the biblical laws. Gmirkin takes up his theory that the Pentateuch was written around 270 BCE using Greek sources found at the Great Library of Alexandria, and applies this to an examination of the biblical law codes. A striking number of legal parallels are found between the Pentateuch and Athenian laws, and specifically with those found in Plato's Laws of ca. 350 BCE. Constitutional features in biblical law, Athenian law, and Plato's Laws also contain close correspondences.

Prophets, Prophecy, and Oracles in the Roman Empire

Jewish, Christian, and Greco-Roman Cultures

Leslie Kelly

This book surveys the uses and function of prophecy, prophets, and oracles among Jews, Christians, and pagans in the first three centuries of the Roman Empire and explores how prophecy and prophetic texts functioned as a common language that enabled religious discourse to develop between these groups. It shows that each of these cultures believed that it was in prophetic texts and prophetic utterances that they could find the surest proof of their religious beliefs and a strong confirmation of their group identity.

The Bible, Homer, and the Search for Meaning in Ancient Myths

Why We Would Be Better Off With Homer's Gods

John Heath

The Bible, Homer, and the Search for Meaning in Ancient Myths explores and compares the most influential sets of divine myths in Western Culture: the Homeric pantheon and Yahweh, the God of the Old Testament. Heath argues that not only does the God of the Old Testament bear a striking resemblance to the Olympians, but also that the Homeric system rejected by the Judeo-Christian tradition offers a better model for the human condition.

Religion, Ethnicity and Xenophobia in the Bible

A Theoretical, Exegetical and Theological Survey

Religion, Ethnicity and Xenophobia in the Bible looks at some of the Bible's most hostile and violent anti-foreigner texts and raises critical questions about how students of the Bible and ancient Near East should grapple with "ethnicity" and "foreignness" conceptually, hermeneutically and theologically. The author uses insights from social psychology, cognitive psychology, anthropology, sociology, and ethnic studies to develop his own perspective on ethnicity and foreignness.

Amoris Laetitia and the spirit of Vatican II

The Source of Controversy

Mariusz Biliniewicz

This work links the notion of "the spirit of Vatican II" with Amoris Laetitia and it argues that a hermeneutics of interpretation of the Second Vatican Council which focuses on following "the spirit of the Council" is the hermeneutics which can be, and in the future most likely will be the predominant way of interpreting and implementing of Amoris Laetitia. This book aims to provide a contribution to this hotly debated topic in the field of Catholic theology.

Catholic Missionaries in Early Modern Asia

Patterns of Localization

Edited by Nadine Amsler, University of Bern, Switzerland, Andrea Badea, German Historical Institute in Rome, Italy, Bernard Heyberger, EHESS, France and Christian Windler, University of Bern, Switzerland

Series: Religious Cultures in the Early Modern World

This book builds on recent ground-breaking research on early modern Catholic missions which has shown that missionaries in Asia cooperated with and accommodated to the needs of local agents rather than being uncompromising promoters of post-Tridentine doctrine and devotion.

Shining a fresh light onto the history of early modern Catholic missions and the early modern Eurasian cultural exchange, this will be an important book for any scholar of Religious History, History of Cultural Contact/Global History and Early Modern History in Asia.

Christian Ethics: The Basics

Robin Gill

Series: The Basics

Christian Ethics: The Basics sets out clearly and critically the different ways that Augustine, Aquinas and Luther continue to shape ethics today within and across Christian denominations. It assumes no previous knowledge of the subject and can be read by religious believers and non-believers alike. Readers are introduced to Christian ethics from the ground up before being invited to consider some of the most controversial but important questions facing people across the world today.

Concise, readable and authoritative, this is the ideal primer for anyone interested in the study of religious ethics and Christianity.

Developing Animal Theology

An Engagement with Leonardo Boff

Clair Linzey, Oxford Centre for Animal Ethics, UK

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book offers an up-to-date examination of the nature and development of animal theology. It considers what animal theology is and how it challenges, and is challenged by, liberation and ecological theology. At the heart of the work is a critical engagement with the Brazilian ecotheologian Leonardo Boff. Clair Linzey addresses ideas that originate from the papal encyclical Laudato Si' and considers how Pope Francis is developing an animal friendly tradition within Catholicism. Exploring new vistas in animal theology, this volume makes a valuable contribution to debates on how religion should be concerned with animals and the environment.

Disclosing Church

An Ecclesiology Learned from Conversations in Practice

Clare Watkins, University of Roehampton

Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology

In 2010 Heythrop College, in collaboration OxCEPT, produced the Action Research - Church and Society (ARCS) project. This book is a direct follow up to that significant report, compiled by one of the original authors, providing a systematic analysis of the impact of the "theological action research" methodology. Including real scenarios alongside the academic discourse, it addresses the need for a more developed theological and methodological account of the ARCS project. This is a book that will be of interest to scholars interested not only Western lived religion, but ecclesiology and theology more generally too.

Enhancement Fit for Humanity

Perspectives on Emerging Technologies

Edited by Michael Baggot, Pontifical Athenaeum Regina Apostolorum, Rome, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book explores what constitutes an enhancement fit for humanity in the age of nanotechnologies, biotechnologies, information technologies, and technologies related to the cognitive sciences. It considers the influence of emergent technology upon our understanding of human nature and the impact on future generations. Drawing on the Catholic tradition in particular, the book gathers international contributions from scientific, philosophical, legal, and religious perspectives. Together they offer a positive step in an ongoing dialogue regarding the promises and perils of emergent technology for man's integral human development.

Evangelicals and the End of Christendom

Religion, Australia and the Crises of the 1960s

Hugh Chilton, University of Sydney

Series: Routledge Studies in Evangelicalism

Exploring the response of evangelicals to the collapse of 'Greater Christian Britain' in Australia in the long 1960s, this book provides a new religious perspective to the end of empire and a fresh national perspective to the end of Christendom. To illuminate these contemporaneous global shifts, this book takes as a case study the response of Australian evangelical Christian leaders to the cultural and religious crises encountered between 1959 and 1979. Far from being a narrow national study, this book places its case studies in the context of the latest North American and European scholarship on secularisation, imperialism and evangelicalism.

Schleiermacher's Theology of Sin and Nature

Agency, Value, and Modern Theology

Daniel J. Pedersen, University of Exeter, UK

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

Friedrich Schleiermacher (1768-1834) is often considered the Father of Modern Liberal Theology, known for his attempt to reconcile the intellectual thrust of the Enlightenment with traditional Protestant Christianity. Despite the influence of his work on significant figures like Karl Barth, he has been largely ignored by contemporary theologians. Focussing on Schleiermacher's doctrine of sin, this book demonstrates how Schleiermacher has not only been misinterpreted, but also underestimated, and deserves a critical re-examination. As such, it will greatly appeal to scholars of Modern Theology and the history of Modern Christianity.

The Routledge Handbook of Hindu-Christian Relations

Edited by Chad M. Bauman and Michelle Voss Roberts

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Religion

The tension between the two historical realities, Hinduism as an ancient Indian religion and Christianity as a religion associated with foreign power and colonialism, continues to animate Hindu-Christian relations today. On the one hand, The Routledge Handbook of Hindu-Christian Relations describes a rich history of amicable, productive, even sometimes syncretic Hindu-Christian encounters. On the other, this handbook equally attends to historical and contemporary moments of tension, conflict, and violence between Hindus and Christians.

The Sunday Assembly and Theologies of Suffering

Katie Cross

Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology

This book draws on an ethnographic study of the atheistic congregation the Sunday Assembly to reflect on how the Church might better deal with suffering, lament and theodicy. The book's central theme emerges from Sunday Assembly's adoption of a philosophy of celebration, which in practice can lead to the "passing over" of the issue of suffering. In response, this book unpacks a similar tendency within the Church to avoid explicit discussion of these difficult issues. The insights provided by this book will be of particular interest to scholars of Religious Studies, Practical Theology, Secularism and Atheism/Non-religion.

Joel Houston, Nipawin Bible College, Canada

Series: Routledge Methodist Studies Series

Was there more to the 'Free Grace' controversy than a simple rehashing of old arguments? This book answers this complex question by setting out the definitive account of the 'Free Grace' controversy in first decade of the Evangelical Revival (1739-49). Centred around the key players in the fracas, John Wesley and George Whitefield, it is a close analysis of the way in which the doctrine of predestination was instrumental in differentiating the early Methodist societies from one another. It will, therefore, be of great interest to scholars of Methodism, Evangelicalism, Theology and Church History.

Media and Science-Religion Conflict

Mass Persuasion in the Evolution Wars

Thomas Aechtner

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book examines why the religion-science skirmishes known as the Evolution Wars have persisted into the 21st century. It does so by considering the influences of mass media in relation to decision-making research and the Elaboration Likelihood Model, one of the most authoritative persuasion theories. Contending that persuasive mass media is a decisive component of science-religion controversies, this book will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion, Science and Religion interactions, as well as researchers of Media and Communication Studies more generally.

The Routledge Handbook of Early Christian Art

Edited by Robin M. Jensen and Mark D. Ellison

The Routledge Handbook of Early Christian Art surveys a broad spectrum of Christian art produced from the late second through the sixth centuries. The first part of the book opens with a general survey of the subject and then presents fifteen essays that discuss specific media of visual art—catacomb paintings, sculpture, mosaics, gold glass, gems, reliquaries, ceramics, icons, ivories, textiles, silver, and illuminated manuscripts. The second part of the book takes up themes relevant to the study of early Christian art.

Transcendence and Spirituality in Chinese Cinema

A Theological Exploration

Kris H.K. Chong

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Film

This book provides a framework by which a global audience might think theologically about contemporary films produced in mainland China by Chinese directors. Up to this point the academic discipline of Christian theology and film has focussed predominantly on Western cinema, and as a result, has missed out the potential insights offered by Chinese spirituality on film.

This is a new perspective on cinema, religion and Chinese culture that will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion and Film, Religious Studies, Theology, Sociology of Religion and Chinese Studies.

Underground Rap as Religion

A Theopoetic Examination of a Process Aesthetic Religion

Jon Ivan Gill, California State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Hip Hop and Religion

This book contends that many practitioners of underground rap have absorbed religious traditions and ideas, and implement, critique, or abandon them in their writings. This in turn creates processual mutations of God that coincide with and speak to the particular context from which they originate.

This is a unique look at the religious workings and implications of underground rap and hip hop. As such, it will be of keen interest to scholars of Religious Studies, Hip-Hop Studies and Process Philosophy and Theology.

Aristotle and Early Christian Thought

Mark Edwards

Aristotle and Early Christian Thought is the first book in English to give a synoptic account of the slow appropriation of Aristotelian thought in the Christian world from the second to the sixth centuries. Concentrating on the great theological topics – creation, the soul, the Trinity and Christology – it makes full use of modern scholarship on the Peripatetic tradition after Aristotle, explaining the significance of Neoplatonism as a mediator of Aristotelian logic. This volume offers a valuable study not only for students of Christian theology in its formative years, but also for anyone seeking an introduction to the thought of Aristotle and its developments in late antiquity.

Between Jews and Heretics

Refiguring Justin Martyr's Dialogue with Trypho

Matthijs den Dulk

This volume offers a new interpretation of Justin Martyr's Dialogue with Trypho (c. 160 CE), which is the oldest preserved literary dialogue between a Jew and a Christian and a key text for understanding the development of early Judaism and Christianity. This study argues that whereas scholarship has routinely cast the Dialogue in terms of "Christianity vs. Judaism," its rhetorical aims and discursive strategies are considerably more complex, because Justin is advocating his particular form of Christianity in constant negotiation with rival forms of Christianity.

Borderline Virginites

Sacred and Secular Virgins in Late Antiquity

Sissel Undheim

In Borderline Virginites Sissel Undheim analyses negotiations over what constituted virginity, and assesses its socio-religious value, in fourth-century Rome. The Church Fathers' texts on virginity are read in the context of a wide selection of sources from the period, revealing a range of seemingly paradoxical virgins, such as widow virgins, married virgins, infant virgins, male virgins, false virgins and fallen virgins. By examinations of these kinds of 'borderline virgins' Undheim demonstrates how physical, cultural and cognitive boundaries of virginity were contested, drawn and redrawn in the fourth and early fifth centuries in the Latin West.

Bride of Hades to Bride of Christ

The Virgin and the Otherworldly Bridegroom in Ancient Greece and Early Christian Rome

Abbe Lind Walker, Connecticut College, USA

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume argues that ancient Greek girls and early Christian virgins and their families made use of rhetorically similar traditions of marriage to an otherworldly bridegroom in order to handle the problem of a girl's denied or disrupted transition into adulthood.

Brides of Hades to Brides of Christ offers a fascinating comparative study that will be of interest to anyone working on virginity and womanhood in the ancient world.

Chromatius of Aquileia and the Making of a Christian City

Robert McEachnie

This book examines the transformation of elite Roman practices in relation to the urban environment, and in particular the shift in patronage by donors from the city as a whole to the Christian church, which occurred at the beginning of the 5th century in the Western Roman Empire. It does this through the lens of a single Italian city, Aquileia, and its bishop, Chromatius. The works of Chromatius, including sermons and correspondence, the archeological remains of the city, and the artwork and epigraphic evidence in the churches built during the period provide valuable insights into a reshaping of the urban environment and its institutions which occurred at the beginning of the 5th century.

Divination and Theurgy in Neoplatonism

Oracles of the Gods

Crystal Addey

Series: Studies in Philosophy and Theology in Late Antiquity

Why did ancient philosophers consult oracles, write about them, and consider them to be an important part of philosophical thought and practice? This book explores the extensive links between oracles and philosophy in Late Antiquity, particularly focusing on the roles of oracles and other forms of divination in third and fourth century CE Neoplatonism. Examining some of the most significant debates between pagan philosophers and Christian intellectuals on the nature of oracles as a central yet contested element of religious tradition, Addey focuses particularly on Porphyry's Philosophy from Oracles and Iamblichus' De Mysteriis - two works which deal extensively with

Peter Chrysologus

David Vincent Meconi, S.J.

Series: The Early Church Fathers

Peter Chrysologus is the first book to offer an introduction to the life of Peter Chrysologus and a selection of his most important sermons in translation, as well as his letter to Eutyches.

The thorough introduction explores the figure of Peter, beginning with the obscure biographies telling of his early life, to his becoming Metropolitan of Ravenna, situating his elevation in the wider socio-political context of the powerful court of Valentinian III and the 5th century Roman West. It is an invaluable tool for anyone working on early Christian theology and the early Church, as well as students of late antiquity and the western Empire.

Jewish Glass and Christian Stone

A Materialist Mapping of the "Parting of the Ways"

Eric C. Smith

This book takes up the question of the divergence of Judaism and Christianity in terms of material—the stuff made, used, and left behind by the persons that lived in and between these religions as they were developing. Considering the glass, clay, stone, paint, vellum, and papyrus of ancient Jews and Christians, this book maps the "parting" in new ways, and argues for a greater role for material and materialism in our reconstructions of the past.

Platonism and Christian Thought in Late Antiquity

Edited by Panagiotis G. Pavlos, Lars Fredrik Janby, Eyjólfur Kjalar Emilsson and Torstein Theodor Tollefsen

Platonism and Christian Thought in Late Antiquity examines the various ways in which Christian intellectuals engaged with Platonism both as pagan competitors and as a source of philosophical material useful to the Christian faith. The chapters are united in their goal to explore transformations that took place in the reception and interaction process between Platonism and Christianity in this period.

Reconceiving Religious Conflict

New Views from the Formative Centuries of Christianity

Edited by Wendy Mayer and Chris L. de Wet

This book deconstructs instances of religious conflict within the formative centuries of Christianity, the first six centuries CE. It explores the theoretical foundations of religious conflict; the dynamics of religious conflict within the context of persecution and martyrdom; the social and moral intersections that undergird the phenomenon of religious conflict; and the relationship between religious conflict and religious identity. It is unique in that it does not solely focus on religious violence, as it is physically manifested, but on religious conflict (and tolerance), looking too at dynamics of religious discourse and practice that often precede and accompany overt religious violence.

Rethinking 'Authority' in Late Antiquity

Authorship, Law, and Transmission in Jewish and Christian Tradition

Edited by A.J. Berkovitz and Mark Letteney

While the chapters of this volume focus on late antique case studies from early Christian and Jewish sources, the methodological intervention speaks to the discipline of history as a whole. Scholars of classical antiquity and the early medieval world will find immediately analogous cases and applications. Furthermore, the critique of the place of authority in the historiographical order of knowledge will find wider resonance across the academic study of history.

2nd Edition

The Biblical World

Edited by Katharine J. Dell, University of Cambridge, UK

Series: Routledge Worlds

A comprehensive guide to the contents, historical settings, and social context of the Bible. This edition has several new chapters and a new section on biblical interpretation. Contributions from leading scholars in the field present wide-ranging views not just of biblical materials and their literary and linguistic context, but also of the social institutions, history and archaeology, and religious concepts. An invaluable resource for students and scholars of the Hebrew Bible and New Testament and their history and interpretation, as well as anyone working on the societies and cultures that created and influenced these texts.

Edited by Robin M. Jensen and Mark D. Ellison

The Routledge Handbook of Early Christian Art surveys a broad spectrum of Christian art produced from the late second through the sixth centuries. The first part of the book opens with a general survey of the subject and then presents fifteen essays that discuss specific media of visual art—catacomb paintings, sculpture, mosaics, gold glass, gems, reliquaries, ceramics, icons, ivories, textiles, silver, and illuminated manuscripts. The second part of the book takes up themes relevant to the study of early Christian art.

The Silencing of Slaves in Early Jewish and Christian Texts

Ronald Charles

The Silencing of Slaves in Early Jewish and Christian Texts analyzes a large corpus of early Christian texts and Pseudepigraphic materials to understand how the authors of these texts used, abused and silenced enslaved characters to articulate their own social, political, and theological visions. The study demonstrates the value of using the tools and applying the insights of subaltern studies to the study of the Pseudepigrapha and in early Christian texts. This volume will be of interest not only to scholars of early Christianity, but also to those working on the history of slavery and subaltern studies in antiquity.

The Slave Metaphor and Gendered Enslavement in Early Christian Discourse

Double Trouble Embodied

Marianne Bjelland Kartzow

This book adds new knowledge to the ongoing discussion of slavery in early Christian discourse. Kartzow argues that the complex tension between metaphor and social reality in early Christian discourse is undertheorized. A metaphor can be so much more than an innocent thought figure, since it involves bodies, relationships, life stories, and memory in complex ways. This book rethinks the potential meaning of the slavery metaphor in early Christian texts, by use of a variety of texts, read with a whole set of theoretical tools, taken from metaphor theory and intersectional gender studies, in particular.

The Sorrows of Mattidia

A New Translation and Commentary

Curtis Hutt

Series: Routledge Classical Translations

This volume offers a new translation of the Pseudo-Clementine family narrative here known as The Sorrows of Mattidia. It contains a full introduction which explores the obscured origins of the text, the plot and main characters, and engages in a comparison of the portrayal of pagan, Jewish, and Christian women in this text with what we encounter in other literature. It also discusses a general strategy for how historians can utilize fictional narratives like this when examining the lives of women in the ancient world. This translation makes this fascinating source for late antique women available in English for the first time.

The Syriac World

Edited by Daniel King

This volume surveys the 'Syriac world', the culture that grew up among the Syriac-speaking communities from the 2nd century CE and which continues to exist and flourish today, both in its original homeland of Syria and Mesopotamia, and also in the worldwide diaspora of Syriac-speaking communities. It examines the religion, the material, visual and literary cultures, history and social structures of this diverse community, as well as Syriac interactions with their neighbours ancient and modern. It offers the first comprehensive survey of Syriac culture as a whole, and fills a significant gap in modern scholarship.

Visions of God and Ideas on Deification in Patristic Thought

Edited by Mark Edwards and Elena Ene D-Vasilescu

Series: Routledge Studies in the Early Christian World

Visions of God and Ideas on Deification in Patristic Thought illustrates the complexity and variety of early Christian thought on the subject of the image of God as a theological concept, and the difficulties that arise even in the interpretation of particular authors who gave a cardinal place to the image of God in their expositions of Christian doctrine. The first part illustrates both the presence and the absence of the image of God in the earliest Christian literature; the second examines various studies in deification, both implicit and explicit; the third explores the relation between iconography and the theological notion of the image.

A Story of YHWH

Cultural Translation and Subversive Reception in Israelite History

Shawn W. Flynn

A Story of YHWH investigates the ancient Israelite expression of their deity, and tracks why variation occurred in that expression, from the early Iron Age to the Persian period. This book is intended for both those interested in the study of ancient divinity broadly, as well as those who study ancient Israel and the Hebrew Bible. The work provides generalists with a better appreciation for the particular challenges in working in the ancient Near East and with the bible specifically, while it provides specialists with a broad theory that can be continually tested.

Between Jews and Heretics

Refiguring Justin Martyr's Dialogue with Trypho

Matthijs den Dulk

This volume offers a new interpretation of Justin Martyr's Dialogue with Trypho (c. 160 CE), which is the oldest preserved literary dialogue between a Jew and a Christian and a key text for understanding the development of early Judaism and Christianity. This study argues that whereas scholarship has routinely cast the Dialogue in terms of "Christianity vs. Judaism," its rhetorical aims and discursive strategies are considerably more complex, because Justin is advocating his particular form of Christianity in constant negotiation with rival forms of Christianity.

Agrippa II

The Last of the Herods

David Jacobson

Agrippa II is the first comprehensive biography of the last descendant of Herod the Great to rule as a client king of Rome. Agrippa was the last king to assume responsibility for the management of the Temple in Jerusalem, and he ultimately saw its destruction in the Judean-Roman War. This volume will appeal to anyone studying Judean-Roman relations and the Judean-Roman War, as well as those working more broadly on Roman client kingship, and Rome's eastern provinces. It covers topics that continue to attract general interest as well as stirring current scholarly debate.

Beyond Orality

Biblical Poetry on its Own Terms

Jacqueline Vayntrub

Beyond Orality: Biblical Poetry on its Own Terms changes the debate by showing how biblical poetry has worked as a mirror, reflecting each era's own self-image of verbal art. Yet Vayntrub also shows that this problem is rooted in a crucial pattern within the Bible itself: the texts we recognize as "poetry" are framed as powerful and ancient verbal performances, dramatic speeches from the past. The Bible's creators presented what we call poetry in terms of their own image of the ancient and the oral, and understanding their native theories of Hebrew verbal art gives us a new basis to rethink our own.

Archaeology, Heritage and Ethics in the Western Wall Plaza, Jerusalem

Darkness at the End of the Tunnel

Raz Kletter

This volume is a critical study of recent archaeology in the Western Wall Plaza area, Jerusalem. Considered one of the holiest places on Earth for Jews and Muslims, it is also a place of controversy, where the State marks 'our' remains for preservation and adoration and 'theirs' for silencing. Readers interested in the history, archaeology and politics of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict will find this book useful, as well as scholars and students of the history and ethics of Archaeology, Jerusalem, conservation, nationalism, and heritage.

Food in Ancient Judah

Domestic Cooking in the Time of the Hebrew Bible

Cynthia Shafer-Elliott

Food in Ancient Judah explores both the archaeological remains and ancient Near Eastern sources to see what they reveal about the domestic gastronomical daily life of ancient Judahites within the narratives of the Hebrew Bible. Beyond the findings, the methodology of the study is in itself innovative. Biblical passages that deal with domestic food preparation are translated and analysed. Archaeological findings and relevant secondary resources are then applied to inform these passages. It reflects both the shift towards the study of everyday life in biblical studies and archaeology and the huge expansion of interest in food history - it will be of interest to scholars in all these

Inscribing Faith in Late Antiquity

Between Reading and Seeing

Sean V. Leatherbury

Inscribing Faith in Late Antiquity considers the Greek and Latin texts inscribed in churches and chapels in the late antique Mediterranean (c. 300-800 CE), compares them to similar texts from pagan, Jewish, and Muslim spaces of worship, and explores how they functioned both textually and visually. Inscribing Faith in Late Antiquity is essential reading for those interested in Roman, late antique, and Byzantine material and visual culture, inscriptions and other texts, and religious life in the ancient Mediterranean.

2nd Edition

Herod

King of the Jews and Friend of the Romans

Peter Richardson and Amy Marie Fisher

Herod examines the life, work, and influence of this controversial figure, who remains the most highly visible of the Roman client kings under Augustus. In this expanded second edition, additions to the original text include discussion of the archaeological evidence of Herod's activity, his building program, numismatic evidence, and consideration of the roles and activities of other client kings in relation to Herod. This volume includes new maps and numerous photographs, and these coupled with the new additions to the text make this a valuable tool for those interested in the wider Roman world of the late first century BCE at both under- and postgraduate levels.

Jewish Glass and Christian Stone

A Materialist Mapping of the "Parting of the Ways"

Eric C. Smith

This book takes up the question of the divergence of Judaism and Christianity in terms of material—the stuff made, used, and left behind by the persons that lived in and between these religions as they were developing. Considering the glass, clay, stone, paint, vellum, and papyrus of ancient Jews and Christians, this book maps the "parting" in new ways, and argues for a greater role for material and materialism in our reconstructions of the past.

Male Friendship, Homosociality, and Women in the Hebrew Bible

Malignant Fraternities

Barbara Thiede

Series: Routledge Studies in the Biblical World

Male alliances, partnerships, and friendships are fundamental to the Hebrew Bible. This book offers a detailed and explicit exploration of the ways in which shared sexual use of women and women's bodies engenders, sustains, and nourishes such relationships in the Hebrew Bible. This book is intended for scholars of the Hebrew Bible, as well as advanced undergraduate and graduate students in Religious Studies, Women and Gender Studies, Masculinity Studies, Queer Studies, and like fields. The book can also be read profitably by lay students of biblical literature, seminary students, and clergy.

Job's Body and the Dramatised Comedy of Moralising

Katherine E. Southwood, University of Oxford, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Biblical World

This book focuses on the expressions used to describe Job's body in pain and on the reactions of his friends to explore the moral and social world reflected in the language and the values that their speeches betray. It highlights how the perspective of illness as retribution is powerfully refuted in Job's speeches and, in particular, to show how this is achieved through comedy. Comedy in Job is a powerful weapon used to expose and ridicule the idea of retribution.

Of interest to anyone working on the Book of Job, as well as those with an interest in suffering and pain in the Hebrew Bible more broadly.

Masculinities in the Court Tales of Daniel

Advancing Gender Studies in the Hebrew Bible

Brian Charles DiPalma

In this volume, Brian Charles DiPalma examines masculinities in the court tales of Daniel as a test case for issues facing the burgeoning area of gender studies in the Hebrew Bible. In doing so, it both analyses how the court tales of Daniel portray the characters in terms of configurations of masculinity in their socio-historical context, and also seeks to advance gender studies in the Hebrew Bible on theoretical, methodological, and political grounds.

Passion, Persecution, and Epiphany in Early Jewish Literature

Edited by Nicholas Peter Legh Allen, North-West University, South Africa, Pierre J. Jordaan, North-West University, South Africa and József Zsengellér, Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church, Hungary

This volume examines Jewish literature produced from c. 700 B.C.E. to c. 200 C.E. from a socio-theological perspective. In this context, it offers a scholarly attempt to understand how the ancient Jewish psyche dealt with times of extreme turmoil and how Jewish theology altered to meet the challenges experienced.

Passion, Persecution and Epiphany in Early Jewish Literature will be of interest to anyone working on the bible (both Masoretic and LXX) and early Jewish literature, as well as students of Jewish history and the Levant in the classical period.

Plato and the Creation of the Hebrew Bible

Russell E. Gmirkin

Series: Copenhagen International Seminar

Plato and the Creation of the Hebrew Bible compares the ancient law collections of the Ancient Near East, the Greeks and the Pentateuch to determine the legal antecedents for the biblical laws. Gmirkin takes up his theory that the Pentateuch was written around 270 BCE using Greek sources found at the Great Library of Alexandria, and applies this to an examination of the biblical law codes. A striking number of legal parallels are found between the Pentateuch and Athenian laws, and specifically with those found in Plato's Laws of ca. 350 BCE. Constitutional features in biblical law, Athenian law, and Plato's Laws also contain close correspondences.

Religion, Ethnicity and Xenophobia in the Bible

A Theoretical, Exegetical and Theological Survey

Brian Rainey

Religion, Ethnicity and Xenophobia in the Bible looks at some of the Bible's most hostile and violent anti-foreigner texts and raises critical questions about how students of the Bible and ancient Near East should grapple with "ethnicity" and "foreignness" conceptually, hermeneutically and theologically. The author uses insights from social psychology, cognitive psychology, anthropology, sociology, and ethnic studies to develop his own perspective on ethnicity and foreignness.

Reconceiving Religious Conflict

New Views from the Formative Centuries of Christianity

Edited by Wendy Mayer and Chris L. de Wet

This book deconstructs instances of religious conflict within the formative centuries of Christianity, the first six centuries CE. It explores the theoretical foundations of religious conflict; the dynamics of religious conflict within the context of persecution and martyrdom; the social and moral intersections that undergird the phenomenon of religious conflict; and the relationship between religious conflict and religious identity. It is unique in that it does not solely focus on religious violence, as it is physically manifested, but on religious conflict (and tolerance), looking too at dynamics of religious discourse and practice that often precede and accompany overt religious violence.

The Silencing of Slaves in Early Jewish and Christian Texts

Ronald Charles

The Silencing of Slaves in Early Jewish and Christian Texts analyzes a large corpus of early Christian texts and Pseudepigraphic materials to understand how the authors of these texts used, abused and silenced enslaved characters to articulate their own social, political, and theological visions. The study demonstrates the value of using the tools and applying the insights of subaltern studies to the study of the Pseudepigrapha and in early Christian texts. This volume will be of interest not only to scholars of early Christianity, but also to those working on the history of slavery and subaltern studies in antiquity.

The Routledge Handbook of Hindu-Christian Relations

Edited by Chad M. Bauman and Michelle Voss Roberts

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Religion

The tension between the two historical realities, Hinduism as an ancient Indian religion and Christianity as a religion associated with foreign power and colonialism, continues to animate Hindu-Christian relations today. On the one hand, The Routledge Handbook of Hindu-Christian Relations describes a rich history of amicable, productive, even sometimes syncretic Hindu-Christian encounters. On the other, this handbook equally attends to historical and contemporary moments of tension, conflict, and violence between Hindus and Christians.

Religion in 50 More Words: A Redescriptive Vocabulary provides a succinct historical, social, and political examination of some of the key words used in the modern study of religion. Differing from the first volume's more theoretical focus, this volume analyzes more common first order descriptive terms that are used throughout the field, inviting readers to theorize their traditional vocabulary.

A Critical Vocabulary

Aaron W. Hughes, University of Rochester, USA and Russell T. McCutcheon

This book is the first of a two-volume work that seeks to transform the study of religion by offering a radically critical perspective. It does so by providing a succinct and critical examination of the key words used in the modern study of religion.

This book submits all of its terms to a critical interrogation and subsequent re-description, thereby allowing a collective reframing of the field. This volume is an indispensable resource for students and academics working in religious studies.

7th Edition

Religion in America

Julia Corbett Hemeyer, Ball State University, USA

Religion in America, 7th Edition provides a comprehensive yet concise introduction to the changing religious landscape of the United States. Extensively revised and updated to reflect current events and trends, this new edition continues to engage students in reflection about religious diversity. Julia Corbett-Hemeyer presents the study of religion as a tool for developing appreciation of communities of faith other than one's own and for understanding the dynamics at work in religion in the United States today.

Freedom of Speech in Universities

Islam, Charities and Counter-terrorism

Alison Scott-Baumann, SOAS University of London, UK and Simon Perfect, SOAS University of London, UK

Series: Islam in the World

Freedom of speech and extremism in university campuses are a major source of debate and moral panic in the UK today. This book combines empirical research and philosophical analysis to explore these issues, with particular focus on the impact upon Muslim students and staff. It offers a new conceptual paradigm for thinking about freedom of speech, based on deliberative democracy, and practical suggestions for universities in handling it.

This highly engaging and topical text will be of interest to those working within public policy, religion and education or religion and politics and Islamic Studies.

2nd Edition

Introducing Islam

William E. Shepard, University of Canterbury, New Zealand

Series: World Religions

What exactly is Islam and what does it mean to be a Muslim in the world today? This book traces the history of Islam from its early origins in the life and career of Mohammed, through its classical expressions, to its interactions with the West in the modern world. Major topics covered include the Qur'an, Islamic law, Islamic theology, and the Sufi movement. Shepard provides dedicated studies of Islam in individual countries (e.g. Turkey, Iran, Egypt and Indonesia) and explores Islamic civilization through discussion of art and culture, and community rituals.

The fully revised and updated second edition features material on contemporary issues such as women, democracy and human rights. Illustrated throughout, it includes learning objectives, a glossary of key Arabic terms, further reading lists and critical thinking boxes to help students engage with each chapter. Muslim Minorities and Social Cohesion

Cultural Fragmentation in the West

Edited by Abe W. Ata

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book examines various attempts in the 'West' to manage cultural, linguistic, and religious diversity – focusing on Muslim minorities in predominantly non-Muslim societies. An international panel of contributors chart evolving national identities and social values, assessing the way that both contemporary 'Western' societies and their contemporary Muslim minorities view themselves and respond to the challenges of diversity. The contributors address multiple critical issues such as gender, the media, citizenship, and multiculturalism. Useful for scholars of religious studies, politics, culture, and migration.

Excavating Pilgrimage

Archaeological Approaches to Sacred Travel and Movement in the Ancient World

Edited by Troels Myrup Kristensen, Aarhus University, Denmark and Wiebke Friese

This volume sheds new light on the significance and meaning of material culture for the study of pilgrimage in the ancient world, focusing in particular on Classical and Hellenistic Greece, the Roman Empire, and Late Antiquity. It thus discusses how archaeological evidence can be used to advance our understanding of ancient pilgrimage and ritual experience? The volume brings together a group of scholars that explore some of the rich archaeological evidence for sacred travel and movement, such as the material footprint of different activities undertaken by pilgrims, the spatial organization of sanctuaries, and wider catchment of pilgrimage sites.

Muslim Minorities and Social Cohesion

Cultural Fragmentation in the West

Edited by Abe W. Ata

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book examines various attempts in the 'West' to manage cultural, linguistic, and religious diversity – focusing on Muslim minorities in predominantly non-Muslim societies. An international panel of contributors chart evolving national identities and social values, assessing the way that both contemporary 'Western' societies and their contemporary Muslim minorities view themselves and respond to the challenges of diversity. The contributors address multiple critical issues such as gender, the media, citizenship, and multiculturalism. Useful for scholars of religious studies, politics, culture, and migration.

Paradoxical Virtue

Reinhold Niebuhr and the Virtue Tradition

Edited by Kevin Carnahan, Central Methodist University, USA and David True, Wilson College, USA

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

The central thesis of this book is that reading Reinhold Niebuhr in the context of virtue ethics is still a profitable undertaking. This is developed by an international panel of contributors over several distinct Parts. These parts cover the Niebuhrian construction of virtue; key virtues related to Niebuhr's work; Niebuhr and the Classical theological virtues; virtues appropriate to the different social roles in Niebuhr's thought; and finally reading Niebuhr in relation to the church and broader political society. Phenomenology and the Horizon of Experience

Spiritual Themes in Henry, Marion, and Lacoste

Joseph Rivera

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book explores the threshold between phenomenology and lived religion in dialogue with three French luminaries: Michel Henry, Jean-Luc Marion and Jean-Yves Lacoste. Through close reading and critical analysis each chapter touches on how a liturgical and ritual setting or a spiritual vision of the body can shape and ultimately structure the experience of an individual's surrounding world. The volume advances debate about the scope and limits of the phenomenological analysis of religious themes and disturbs the assumption that theology and phenomenology are incapable of constructive interdisciplinary dialogue.

Transcendence, Creation and Incarnation

From Philosophy to Religion

Anthony O'Hear, The University of Buckingham, U.K.

Series: Transcending Boundaries in Philosophy and Theology

This book expounds and analyses notions of transcendence, creation and incarnation reflectively and personally, combining both philosophical and religious insights. Preferring tender-minded approaches to reductively materialistic ones, it shows some ways in which reductive approaches to human affairs can distort the appreciation of our lives and activities.

Taking in art, literature, music and classical Greek writings, this is a multifaceted thesis on transcendence. It will, therefore, will be of keen interest to any scholar of Philosophy of Religion, Theology, Aesthetics and Metaphysics.

American Babylon

Christianity and Democracy Before and After Trump

Philip S. Gorski, Yale University, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

In European history, the relationship between Christianity and democracy has often been ambivalent. In US history, it has usually been complementary. But the role of white evangelicals in the election of Donald Trump suggests that American Christianity may now be taking an authoritarian turn. American Babylon is a historical sociology of this political moment.

On the Significance of Religion for Global Diplomacy

Philip McDonagh, Kishan Manocha, John Neary and Lucia Vázquez Mendoza

Series: Religion Matters

What could it mean, in terms of strengthening multilateral diplomacy, if the UN and other regional diplomatic frameworks engaged more creatively with a religious perspective? In this ground-breaking volume it is argued that international organisations, backed by governments, can and should use their convening power to initiate new, multi-layered frameworks of engagement, inclusive of the representatives of religion. Combining cutting-edge research with concrete recommendations for academics, religious actors, policy makers and practitioners, this accessible volume helps to build bridges between these oftentimes separated spheres of engagement.

Religion and Social Protest Movements

Tobin Miller Shearer

What role has religion played in social protest movements? This book examines how activists have used religious resources such as liturgy, prayer, song and vestments with a focus on global case studies. Prayer as a sacred act is usually associated with piety and pacifism, however it can be argued that those who pray in public while protesting are more likely to encounter violence. Drawing on journalistic accounts, participant reflections, and secondary literature, Shearer offers both historical and theoretical perspectives on the persistent correlation of the use of public prayer with an increase in conflict and violence.

The End of Religion

Feminist Reappraisals of the State

Edited by Kathleen McPhillips and Naomi Goldenberg

Feminist critical analysis has not yet examined how the assumption that religion is natural, timeless, universal and omnipresent supports sexist and race based oppression. This book proposes radical new thinking about religion in order to better comprehend and confront the systematic disempowerment of women and marginalized groups.

Including case studies focusing on how the category of religion is deployed to perpetuate male hegemony and racist inequities in Australia, Mexico, the United States, Britain and Canada, this volume will be of key interest to scholars and students of Religion, Sociology, Political Science and Gender Studies.

Seeing God in Our Birth Experiences

A Psychoanalytic Inquiry into Pre and Perinatal Religious Development.

Helen Holmes, King's College London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book adds a new and innovative perspective to this line of thought by being the first to link prenatal and perinatal experiences to the origins of these unconscious underpinnings of our shared images of God. This is a bold study of the development of one of humanity's most fundamental aspects. As such, it will be of great interest to scholars of the psychology of religion, psychology, psychoanalysis, religious studies and early infant development.

An Introduction to the Cognitive Science of Religion

Connecting Evolution, Brain, Cognition and Culture

Claire White

In recent decades, a new scientific approach to understand, explain, and predict many features of religion has emerged. It suggests that religion, like language or music, naturally emerges in humans with tractable similarities. This new approach has profound implications for how we understand religion, including why it appears so easily, and why people are willing to fight—and die for it.

This book is an indispensable resource for introductory courses on religion and a much-needed option for advanced courses.

Enhancement Fit for Humanity

Perspectives on Emerging Technologies

Edited by Michael Baggot, Pontifical Athenaeum Regina Apostolorum, Rome, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book explores what constitutes an enhancement fit for humanity in the age of nanotechnologies, biotechnologies, information technologies, and technologies related to the cognitive sciences. It considers the influence of emergent technology upon our understanding of human nature and the impact on future generations. Drawing on the Catholic tradition in particular, the book gathers international contributions from scientific, philosophical, legal, and religious perspectives. Together they offer a positive step in an ongoing dialogue regarding the promises and perils of emergent technology for man's integral human development.

Media and Science-Religion Conflict

Mass Persuasion in the Evolution Wars

Thomas Aechtner

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book examines why the religion-science skirmishes known as the Evolution Wars have persisted into the 21st century. It does so by considering the influences of mass media in relation to decision-making research and the Elaboration Likelihood Model, one of the most authoritative persuasion theories. Contending that persuasive mass media is a decisive component of science-religion controversies, this book will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion, Science and Religion interactions, as well as researchers of Media and Communication Studies more generally.

Negotiating Science and Religion In America

Past, Present, and Future

Greg Cootsona, California State University Chico, USA

Science and religion represent two powerful forces that continue to influence the American cultural landscape. This book sketches an intellectual-cultural history from the Puritans to the twenty-first century focusing on the sometimes turbulent relationship between the two. Using the past as a guide for what is happening today, this volume engages research from key scholars and the author's work on emerging adults' attitudes in order to sketch out the contours of the future for this exciting, and sometimes controversial, field.

An ideal volume for students and scholars seeking to understand the relationship between religion and science today.

Law and Gender in the Ancient Near East and the Hebrew Bible

Ilan Peled, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands
This volume examines how gender relations were regulated in ancient Near Eastern and biblical law. The textual corpus examined includes the various pertinent law collections, royal decrees and instructions from Mesopotamia and Hatti, and the three biblical legal collections.

Law and Gender in the Ancient Near East and the Hebrew Bible offers an invaluable resource for anyone working on Near Eastern society and culture, and gender in the ancient world more broadly.

Male Friendship, Homosociality, and Women in the Hebrew Bible

Malignant Fraternities

Barbara Thiede

Series: Routledge Studies in the Biblical World

Male alliances, partnerships, and friendships are fundamental to the Hebrew Bible. This book offers a detailed and explicit exploration of the ways in which shared sexual use of women and women's bodies engenders, sustains, and nourishes such relationships in the Hebrew Bible. This book is intended for scholars of the Hebrew Bible, as well as advanced undergraduate and graduate students in Religious Studies, Women and Gender Studies, Masculinity Studies, Queer Studies, and like fields. The book can also be read profitably by lay students of biblical literature, seminary students, and clergy.

Rape Culture, Purity Culture, and Coercive Control in Teen Girl Bibles

Caroline Blyth, University of Auckland, New Zealand

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

In this fascinating book Caroline Blyth takes a close look at Bibles marketed to teen girls and asks how these might perpetuate harmful gender stereotypes that lie at the heart of rape culture. The author considers the devotionals, commentaries, and advice sections placed throughout these Bibles, which offer teen girl readers life advice. Within these discussions, there is a strong emphasis on modesty, purity and sexual passivity as markers of young women's 'godliness'. Given the seeming popularity of these Bibles among Christian teen girls, the need to dismantle their damaging rhetoric is especially urgent.

Rape Myths, the Bible, and #MeToo

Johanna Stiebert

Biblical studies is increasingly interdisciplinary and frequently focuses on how the Bible is received and represented in the contemporary world, above all in politics, news media and popular culture. Rape Myths, the Bible and #MeToo illustrates this with particular and critical assessment of #MeToo and its rapid and global impact. Rape myths, in particular the myth that rape victims are complicit in the violence they encounter, which consequently renders sexual violence 'not so bad', are examined both with regard to current backlash to #MeToo and to biblical texts that undermine the violence perpetrated by rape.

Religion, the Body, and Sexuality

An Introduction

Nina Hoel, University of Oslo, Norway, Melissa M. Wilcox and Liz Wilson

Series: Engaging with Religion

How does religion relate to bodies and sexualities? Many people would answer, simply, "through repression", but the relationship is much more complicated than that.

This book offers students and general readers a sophisticated and accessible exploration of the connections between religion, sexuality, and the body, through case studies and overviews on subjects including celibacy, regulation, violence and ecstasy.

This engaging book is an excellent addition to introductory courses on religion or sexuality and is a much-needed new volume for advanced courses on the intersections of these areas of human experience.

The Bible and Sexual Violence Against Men

Chris Greenough, Edge Hill University, UK

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

This book argues that the shame and stigma around male sexual abuse are interwoven with contemporary social and cultural concepts of masculinity, and are also found in the ancient world and biblical texts themselves. It is interdisciplinary, and has three main areas of exploration:

Men Too? Exploring the myths around sexual violence against men Sexual violence against men in the Hebrew Bible Reading Jesus' enforced nudity at the crucifixion as sexual violence.

In seeking to serve those who are not familiar with the Bible, short summaries of the biblical texts are given in each case.

Trafficking Hadassah

Collective Trauma, Cultural Memory, and Identity in the Book of Esther and in the African Diaspora

Ericka Shawndricka Dunbar

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

The representation of sexual trafficking in the book of Esther has parallels with the cultural memories, histories, and materialized pain of African(a) girls and women across time and space, from the Persian Empire, to subsequent slave trade routes and beyond.

Trafficking Hadassah illuminates that Africana female bodies have been and continue to be colonized and sexualized, exploited for profit and pleasure, causing adverse physical, mental, sexual, socio-cultural, and spiritual consequences for the girls and women concerned.

Unlocking Orthodoxies for Inclusive Theologies

Queer Alternatives

Edited by Robert E. Shore-Goss and Joseph N. Goh, Monash University Malaysia

Series: Gender, Theology and Spirituality

This book enters a new liminal space between the LGBTQ and denominational Christian communities. It simultaneously explores how those who identify as queer can find a home in church and how those leading welcoming, or indeed unwelcoming, congregations can better serve both communities.

This is a forward-looking and positive vision of a more inclusive theology and ecclesiology. It will, therefore, appeal to scholars of Queer Theology and Religious Studies as well as practitioners seeking a fresh perspective on church and the LGBTQ community.

Violence, Entitlement, and Politics

A Theology on Transforming the Subject

Steven G. Ogden

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book is an exercise in political theology, exploring the problem of gender-based violence by focusing on violent male subjects and the issue of entitlement. The book also reflects on today's pervasive strongman politics, where political rationalities foster proprietorial thinking and entitlement gender patterns, and how theology is called to develop counter-discourses and counter-practices.

American Babylon

Christianity and Democracy Before and After Trump

Philip S. Gorski, Yale University, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

In European history, the relationship between Christianity and democracy has often been ambivalent. In US history, it has usually been complementary. But the role of white evangelicals in the election of Donald Trump suggests that American Christianity may now be taking an authoritarian turn. American Babylon is a historical sociology of this political moment.

Christianity and the Alt-Right

Exploring the Relationship

Damon T. Berry, St. Lawrence University, USA

Christianity and the Alt-Right: Exploring the Relationship looks back at the 2016 presidential election and the support the President has enjoyed among white Evangelicals. This cutting-edge volume offers insights into the role of race and racism in shaping both the Trump candidacy and presidency and the ways in which xenophobia and racism and religion intersect within the Alt-Right and Evangelical cultures in the age of Trump.

Cosmology and Moral Community in the Lakota Sun Dance

Reconceptualizing J. R. Walker's Account

Fritz Detwiler

Series: Vitality of Indigenous Religions

This book uses a close analysis of James R. Walker's 1917 monograph on the Lakota Sun Dance to explore how the Sun Dance communal ritual complex—the most important Lakota ceremony—creates moral community, providing insights into the cosmology and worldview of Lakota tradition. Offering a nuanced understanding that centers Lakota views of the sacred, this book will be relevant to scholars of religion and animism, and all those interested in Native American cultures and lifeways.

Negotiating Science and Religion In America

Past, Present, and Future

Greg Cootsona, California State University Chico, USA

Science and religion represent two powerful forces that continue to influence the American cultural landscape. This book sketches an intellectual-cultural history from the Puritans to the twenty-first century focusing on the sometimes turbulent relationship between the two. Using the past as a guide for what is happening today, this volume engages research from key scholars and the author's work on emerging adults' attitudes in order to sketch out the contours of the future for this exciting, and sometimes controversial, field.

An ideal volume for students and scholars seeking to understand the relationship between religion and science today.

9th Edition

Religion in America

John Corrigan, Florida State University, USA and Winthrop Hudson, James B. Colgate Professor of the History of Christianity, Colgate Rochester Divinity School

This comprehensive narrative account of religion in America from the sixteenth century through the present depicts the religious life of the American people within the context of American society. It addresses topics ranging from the European origins of American religious thought and the diversity of religion in America, to the relation of nationhood with religious practice and the importance of race, ethnicity, and gender in American religious history.

Matthew Rowley

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

This book explores how polarised interpretations of America's past influence the present and vice versa. A focus on competing Protestant reactions to President Trump's 'Make America Great Again' evidences a fundamental divide over how America should remember historical racism, sexism and exploitation.

An accessible and timely book, this is essential reading for those concerned with the vexed relationship of religion and politics in the United States, including students and scholars in the fields of Protestantism, history, political science, religious studies, and sociology.

Religious Activism, Innovation, and Diversity in the Global City

Edited by Richard Flory and Diane Winston

Why has Los Angeles been a hot spot for religious activism, innovation, and diversity? What makes this Southern California metropolis conducive to spiritual experimentation and new ways of believing and belonging? A center of world religions, Los Angeles is the birthplace of Pentecostalism, the site of the largest Roman Catholic diocese in the U.S., the home of more Buddhists anywhere except for Asia, and home base for myriad transnational, spiritual movements. Religion in Los Angeles examines historical and contemporary examples of Angelenos' openness to new forms of belief and practice in congregations, communities, and civic life.

Asian Christianity and Theology

Inculturation, Interreligious Dialogue, Integral Liberation

Edited by Edmund Kee-Fook Chia

Series: Studies in World Christianity and Interreligious Relations

This book offers a comprehensive synthesis of current thinking on Asian Christianity and discusses how the churches in Asia engage with issues of inculturation, integral liberation, and interreligious dialogue. The book divided into four main sections. The first section offers an overview of Asia and Asian Christian expressions that came into being after the Second World War; the second discusses theologies of inculturation; the third theologies of integral liberation; and the fourth theologies of interreligious dialogue.

Dialogue and Doxography in Indian Philosophy

Points of View in Buddhist, Jaina, and Advaita Vedānta Traditions

Karl-Stéphane Bouthillette

Series: Dialogues in South Asian Traditions: Religion, Philosophy, Literature and History

This is the first book fully dedicated to Indian philosophical doxography. It looks at Indian doxography both as a witness of inter and intra sectarian dialogues, and as a religious phenomenon. This is the first time that the genre has been taken beyond its literary format and equally considered in its performative dimension, as a spiritual exercise. It will, therefore, be vital reading for academics working in Religious Studies, Hindu Studies, Indology and South Asian History.

Catholic Missionaries in Early Modern Asia

Patterns of Localization

Edited by Nadine Amsler, University of Bern, Switzerland, Andreea Badea, German Historical Institute in Rome, Italy, Bernard Heyberger, EHESS, France and Christian Windler, University of Bern, Switzerland

Series: Religious Cultures in the Early Modern World

This book builds on recent ground-breaking research on early modern Catholic missions which has shown that missionaries in Asia cooperated with and accommodated to the needs of local agents rather than being uncompromising promoters of post-Tridentine doctrine and devotion.

Shining a fresh light onto the history of early modern Catholic missions and the early modern Eurasian cultural exchange, this will be an important book for any scholar of Religious History, History of Cultural Contact/Global History and Early Modern History in Asia.

Transcendence and Spirituality in Chinese Cinema

A Theological Exploration

Kris H.K. Chong

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Film

This book provides a framework by which a global audience might think theologically about contemporary films produced in mainland China by Chinese directors. Up to this point the academic discipline of Christian theology and film has focussed predominantly on Western cinema, and as a result, has missed out the potential insights offered by Chinese spirituality on film.

This is a new perspective on cinema, religion and Chinese culture that will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion and Film, Religious Studies, Theology, Sociology of Religion and Chinese Studies.

Holocaust Memory and Britain's Religious-Secular Landscape

Politics, Sacrality, And Diversity

David Tollerton, University of Exeter, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book provides the first substantial discussion of the interface between public Holocaust memory in contemporary Britain and the nation's changing religious-secular landscape. In the first half of the book attention will be given to the varied meanings of Holocaust memory for Jewish, Muslim, Christian, and post-Christian communities. In its second half, the focus will turn to the ways in which public Holocaust remembrance activities are intertwined with perceptions of sacrality. As such, it will be of keen interest to scholars of Religious Studies, Jewish studies and Holocaust Studies, as well as the Sociology of Religion, Material Religion and Secularism.

Freethought and Atheism in Central and Eastern Europe

The Development of Secularity and Non-Religion

Edited by Tomáš Bubík, Palacký University Olomouc, Czech Republic, Atko Remmel, Palacký University Olomouc, Czech Republic and David Václavík, Masaryk University, Czech Republic

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book provides the first comprehensive overview of atheism, secularity and non-religion in Central and Eastern Europe in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. In contrast to scholarship that has focused on the 'decline of religion' and secularization theory, the book builds upon recent trends to focus on the 'rise of non-religion' itself. Offering an important geographical perspective to the study of freethought, atheism, secularity and non-religion, this wide-ranging book will be of significant interest to scholars of twentieth-century social and intellectual history, sociology of religion and non-religion, cultural and religious studies, philosophy and theology.

Contrasts in Religion, Community, and Structure at Three Homeless Shelters

Changing Lives

Ines W. Jindra, Michael Jindra and Sarah DeGenero

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

How do people in poverty and homelessness change their lives and get back on their feet? Homeless shelters across the world play a huge role in this process. In this timely book, the authors look at three homeless shelters that take more or less intensive approaches to faith, community, and programming.

Entering into significant debates in social theory over religion, agency, cognitive action, and culture, this book is important reading for scholars and students in religious studies, sociology and social work.

Reconceiving Religious Conflict

New Views from the Formative Centuries of Christianity

Edited by Wendy Mayer and Chris L. de Wet

This book deconstructs instances of religious conflict within the formative centuries of Christianity, the first six centuries CE. It explores the theoretical foundations of religious conflict; the dynamics of religious conflict within the context of persecution and martyrdom; the social and moral intersections that undergird the phenomenon of religious conflict; and the relationship between religious conflict and religious identity. It is unique in that it does not solely focus on religious violence, as it is physically manifested, but on religious conflict (and tolerance), looking too at dynamics of religious discourse and practice that often precede and accompany overt religious violence

Nonviolence in the World's Religions

A Concise Introduction

Edited by Jeffery D. Long and Michael G. Long

The twenty-first century began with the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. Much has been written and debated on the relationship between faith and violence, with acts of terror at the forefront. However, the twentieth century also gave rise to many successful nonviolent protest movements. This is the ideal introduction to the relationship between religion and violence for undergraduate students, as well as for those in related fields, such as religious studies, peace and conflict studies, area studies, sociology, political science, and history.

Religion and Violence

A Religious Studies Approach

Paul R. Powers

Does religion cause much of the world's violence? This book explores the potential of classic social theories to shed light on the relationships between religion and violence, starting from the premise that both religion and violence are ordinary elements of social life and that rather than causing violence, religion plays a crucial role in the management of violence.

Ideal for any student approaching the topic of religion and violence for the first time, this core textbook includes chapter overviews and summaries, guides for applying theory to real-world events, discussion questions, and case studies.

Scripture and Violence

Edited by Julia Snyder and Daniel H. Weiss, University of Cambridge, UK

Scripture and Violence explores the complex relationship between scriptural texts and real-world acts of violence. A variety of issues are addressed, including the modern tendency to condemn "religious" violence while tolerating other forms that are considered "secular," the prevalent assumption that texts have a single, clear meaning and application, and the common view that the actions of "religious" people are motivated by what they read in texts. Contributions come from a diverse group of scholars of Islam, Judaism, and Christianity. This book highlights the incredible complexity of the relationship between texts and human actions.

Violence, Entitlement, and Politics

A Theology on Transforming the Subject

Steven G. Ogden

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book is an exercise in political theology, exploring the problem of gender-based violence by focusing on violent male subjects and the issue of entitlement. The book also reflects on today's pervasive strongman politics, where political rationalities foster proprietorial thinking and entitlement gender patterns, and how theology is called to develop counter-discourses and counter-practices.

The Silencing of Slaves in Early Jewish and Christian Texts

Ronald Charles

The Silencing of Slaves in Early Jewish and Christian Texts analyzes a large corpus of early Christian texts and Pseudepigraphic materials to understand how the authors of these texts used, abused and silenced enslaved characters to articulate their own social, political, and theological visions. The study demonstrates the value of using the tools and applying the insights of subaltern studies to the study of the Pseudepigrapha and in early Christian texts. This volume will be of interest not only to scholars of early Christianity, but also to those working on the history of slavery and subaltern studies in antiquity.

Routledge Handbook of Yoga and Meditation Studies

Edited by Suzanne Newcombe, The Open University, UK and Karen O'Brien-Kop, University of Roehampton, UK

The Routledge Handbook of Yoga and Meditation Studies is a comprehensive and interdisciplinary resource, which frames and contextualises the rapidly expanding fields that explore yoga and meditative techniques. The book analyses yoga and meditation studies in a variety of religious, historical and geographical settings. The chapters, authored by an international set of experts, are laid out across five sections.
